 SCHOLARSHIPS: $300 scholarships are available for the first 10 teams to register with at least 3 participants from each school. To qualify, the team must be made up of:

- The school principal or superintendent (required)
- At least two school representatives that may include teachers, guidance counselors, administrators, parent leaders etc.
- The school must be registered with the Learning for Life Program.

Additional Eleven Principles Sourcebooks may be purchased at the conference for the reduced rate of $164. After the conference, they will be available through CEP for $249.

Effective character education improves academic achievement, strengthens students' self-esteem and life skills, and reduces disciplinary problems.

The latest in CEP's nationwide series of training institutes, the March 4 session will provide attendees with the tools, techniques, and capability to create an effective character education curriculum in their schools. Basic guide will be CEP's widely respected Eleven Principles of Effective Character Education Sourcebook.

The nonsectarian and nonpartisan Character Education Partnership (www.character.org), headquartered in Washington, D.C., is the national advocacy leader for character education.

Character Education Workshop

Come explore new pathways to excellence as you listen, observe, question, interact, and discover how to transform your school into a model of excellence.
