

EMAIL

From: John Merrow jmerrow@learningmatters.tv
Sent: Thursday, July 05, 2012 11:53 AM
Subject: Tonight on the NewsHour

Friends,

It looks as if Part Two of our story about what strikes me as a revolutionary approach to High School will air tonight on the NewsHour. We take you to a poor district in south Texas to see if offering college courses to high school juniors and seniors--any and all comers welcome--can work as an alternative approach. We know that, for most students, high school is pretty boring. The momentum and conventional wisdom are in favor of more 'rigor', but not in south Texas, where Superintendent Daniel King eschews that word and line of thought in favor of 'challenges and opportunities.'

I hope you get a chance to tune in.

Thanks.

John Merrow

John Merrow
Education Correspondent,
PBS NewsHour, and President,
Learning Matters, Inc.

My blog: <http://takingnote.learningmatters.tv/>

The Influence of Teachers: <http://amzn.to/qLS7JT>

Follow Learning Matters: <http://learningmatters.tv/the-latest/>